

GLENN HOLDINGS GO FOR A SONG; $8,500 FOR ALL

Sale of Ring, Horse and Buggy, Made in Advance, Now Contested.

JUDGE WHO APPROVED IT NOW ANTAGONISTIC

Allen Kimm 1 Who Bought Property to Give to Merchant to Contest.

The personal and real estate property of David A. Glenn, which was sold by Trustee Stubblefield at the Court House yesterday, was disposed of for a song. None of it brought its full value and some of the real estate was almost given away. The total amount received for all of Mr. Glenn's property aggregated less than $9,000.

The diamond ring and horse and buggy were not sold under the hammer. Friends of Mr. Glenn were astonished at the determination of Stubblefield to compel Mr. Glenn to turn over the ring, which had been presented to the veteran by his wife 20 years ago.

Mr. Glenn offered to borrow the money and purchase the ring and horse and buggy to prevent it from being sold at auction, but Stubblefield refused to consider it.

Allen Kimmel, a relative of Mr. Glenn, learned of the attitude of the trustee and went to Stubblefield as an individual and made an offer to buy the ring, horse and buggy. Stubblefield at first refused, saying that the law required them to be disposed of at public auction with the other property.

But after conferring with Judge Alexander Ross, in whose court the case came for adjudication, Stubblefield sold the ring, horse and buggy to Mr. Kimmel for two-thirds of their appraised value.

Mr. Kimmel made the purchase for the purpose of turning them back to Mr. Glenn, although the latter was not informed of his intentions. After the purchase, which had been approved both by Stubblefield and Ross, several parties inquired about the ring and informed the trustee that they would give more than Kimmel paid for the ring.

The matter was referred to Ross, who declared the sale, which he approved, could not stand and ordered the ring turned back to be resold. Mr. Kimmel refused to comply with this order and declared he would take the matter to the Federal Court and have Judge Dyer pass upon the case. It has not been ascertained whether Judge Ross will force a show-down or not.

The first item sold yesterday was fifteen shares in the Southern Metal Company, which had been valued at $1,000. Harry Mechen opened the bidding with an offer of $5. It was finally sold for $57 to Joe Haas.

One of the best bargains of the sale was the purchase of forty-five shares of Roth Tobacco stock, the par value of which was $100. This was bought by Sam Carter for $450.

DR. CUNNINGHAM

HOME IS ROBBED

Thief Forces Basement Window and Ransacks Residence

The home of Dr. R. E. Cunningham

of 520 Themis street was entered by burglars at about 1 o'clock yesterday morning.

Access to the premises was gained by forcing a basement window. After reaching the basement the intruders made their way up the steps into the kitchen, where they turned on the electric lights and began a search of the interior.

The burglars were evidently of the impression that the members of the household were away on their vacation as they made no attempt to conceal their presence after securing admission to the building.

Mrs. Cunningham, who was alone, could hear them walking around the room, and their actions would indicate that they did not entertain the slightest fear of being molested.

When she first heard the noise she was too badly frightened to make an outcry, but after a few seconds' deliberation she regained her composure and decided on a plan of action.

Going to one of the windows she shouted loudly for assistance. Her cries reached the ears of her unwelcome guests, who made their departure before the arrival of the aroused neighbors.

An investigation proved that while various articles of value had been secured from the drawers and shelves, and assembled on the kitchen table, the thieves in their scramble to vacate made their escape without taking anything with them.

They left the lights burning, presumably to guide them when they entered the basement, in making their exit through the open window.

FARMER'S GRAPES STOLEN

Vineyard of William Sanders Raided During Family's Absence.

William Sanders, a farmer, living within a short distance of Ilmo, is looking for the parties who robbed his grape arbor a few days ago. The thieves carted away more than a thousand pounds of the luscious fruit.

Mr. Sanders and his wife left their farm house in charge of "Tiger," their vicious watchdog, while they spent the day at the home of a neighbor.

When they returned they noticed that some of the grape vines looked as if they had been torn from their fastenings. Upon investigation, Mr. Sanders found they had been shorn of every grape.

The yield this year was one of the largest they had ever produced, and Mr. Sanders had delayed in gathering them until they could reach the stage of perfection.

The dog, which had never permitted anyone to enter the yard while the family were away, was sleeping contentedly on the rear porch when Mr. Sanders returned.

Mr. Sanders believes the thief or thieves were acquainted with conditions on his farm and were able to make friends with the dog because of having come in contact with him before.

In addition to the grapes some of his peaches were also taken. Mr. Sanders produces some of the finest varieties of fruit in this section of the State, and grapes and peaches are his hobbies.

WILLINGNESS TO OBLIGE

THE public has a right to something more than perfunctory service from those who supply its telephone needs.

There is something more to a telephone service than merely placing at the disposal of the public adequate telephone equipment.

Courtesy, willingness to oblige and patience, under trying conditions on the part of telephone employes, promote friendly feeling and are essential to the best kind of telephone service.
